Hello,

You have a new update to your order:

We've installed your keyboard and we are happy to report that your computer powers on and everything is testing good.

From here, the computer will go to outgoing testing. Assuming it passes outgoing testing (may take a day or two), it will then be sent to the shipping department. If you have a balance due, you'll receive an email from the billing department asking you to call them with you billing info (we never save billing info). If you don't have a balance due, you'll receive a tracking number when your unit ships.

Thanks, Steven
